ABOUT THE PARK

Sequoia National Park is one of the oldest National Parks in the United States. Spanning over 400,000 acres, the Park was established in 1890 to protect the big trees in the Giant Forest, including the General Sherman Tree, the world's largest living thing. The Park also features Mt. Whitney, the highest mountain in the contiguous 48 states, reaching 14,494 feet.

Though most Park visitors arrive by private vehicle, the increasing number of motor vehicles in the Nation's Parks threatens the very resources the Parks were intended to protect. Sequoia National Park receives over 1 million visitors every year. More visitors means more traffic on Park roads and parking areas, resulting in lengthy delays and roadway congestion. This congestion translates to air and noise pollution which threatens the fragile natural and cultural resources within the Parks.

Help preserve our national treasure by cutting back on vehicle congestion and pollution. Leave the driving to the Sequoia Shuttle.
